West Loop Contemporary Fine Art Expo

bert leveille BOOTH #10

PRESS RELEASE

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

BERT LEVEILLE at West Loop Contemporary Fine Art Expo booth #10, February 21 – 23, 2025.

Chicago, IL, February 2025 — Visit BERT LEVEILLE's booth #10 and view her installation on the stage at the inaugural West Loop Contemporary Fine Art Expo at the Stephen M Bailey Auditorium, Plumbers Hall (1340 W. Washington Blvd) situated in the West Loop/Fulton Market locale..

The First Look Preview is from 6PM to 9PM on Friday, February 21, 2025. The WEST LOOP FINE ART EXPO is from 10am – 6pm on Saturday, February 22, and from 11am – 5pm on Sunday, February 23, 2025 .

The West Loop Contemporary Fine Art Expo is a curated Boutique Expo showcasing works from over 40 invitation-only fine artists from eight states. Exhibiting artists will encompass a variety of styles, including: Abstract & Abstract-Expressionism, Cityscapes, Encaustic, Expressionism, Figurative, Impressionism, Mandala, Pastel, Plein Air, Portraiture, Post-Impressionism, Realism, Sculpture, Still Life, and more.

BERT LEVEILLE's booth will display large and small paintings and some never before exhibited watercolors. A site-specific installation will include elements from LEVEILLE's waterfall exhibition – large painted panels, video and LED color changing lights. “Leveille speaks of ‘spirituality’ and her desire to connect with a ‘more universal consciousness.’ These are sentiments very much of our times, when many turn to meditation, not just as a way of cooling our hyperactive brains but of tuning into a higher realm of being, where possibilities of ecstasy exist and can be accessed through art. Like Rothko’s large and dreamy canvases, Leveille’s installations invite us to lose ourselves in an encounter that transcends the irritations and limitations of the day to day. It may not go on forever, but it’s a welcome respite from an increasingly troubled world.” — Ann Landi

Gourmet Expos has created and produced West Loop events for seven years, as it is one of the most vibrant and growing commercial districts in Chicagoland. The historic venue is the perfect backdrop for the new fair, allowing curious art seekers to discover new artists and embrace the city’s thriving arts community.

The West Loop Contemporary Fine Art Expo is supported by various local arts organizations, including the Chicago Alliance of Visual Artists (CAVA), Chicago Women’s Caucus for Art (CWCA), and Fulton Street Collective. LEVEILLE is a member of CAVA and CWCA.

ABOUT BERT LEVEILLE

BERT LEVEILLE has been planning, presenting, curating exhibitions, and exhibiting for several years nationally and throughout the Chicago metropolitan area. Her artwork is a combination of herself, and her world as a conduit – intertwining, connecting, and exploring a more universal world in search of an expanded yet connected consciousness.

Exposure to and love of theater permeates her art practice with mural sized abstract paintings, 3-D elements, and collaborations with dancers and musicians. Immersive installations include color sequenced lighting, animation, sound, and video. She explores a fine line of one being inside the art (“on-stage”) looking out; becoming part of the art; and/or viewing the art.

LEVEILLE creates installations in historic buildings: factories, court houses and walk-in vaults; on stage with dancers; schools; and traditional gallery spaces. Notably: 6 installations including “Dreams” (2023) and “Dreams 2” (2024) in the historic Starline in Harvard IL; “streaming reflections” – The Art Center Highland Park, gallery (2019), Adlai HS, rotunda galleries and residency (2019), and Old Court House Art Center (OCHAC) gallery and vault (2018); “As It Happens”— a collaboration with poets in the small vault at OCHAC (2020); and “connections after covid” — featured artist solo in the historic Dole gallery (2023). She tests and shares concepts in her Starline “incubation, experimentation, installation, exhibition studio”.

EXHIBITION DATES: First Look Preview: Friday, 6PM to 9PM, February 21; WEST LOOP FINE ART EXPO, Sat (10am – 6pm) and Sun (11am – 5pm), February 22 - 23, 2025

ABOUT BERT LEVEILLE

LEVEILLE creates installations in historic buildings: factories, court houses and walk-in vaults; on stage; with dancers; schools; and traditional gallery spaces. Notably: “Dreams 2” (2024) and 6 installations including “Dreams” (2023) in the historic Starline Factory in Harvard, IL; “connections after covid” — featured artist solo in the historic Dole gallery (2023); “As It Happens” — a collaboration with poets in the small vault at Old Court House Art Center (OCHAC) (2020); “streaming reflections” – The Art Center Highland Park, gallery (2019), Stevenson HS, rotunda galleries and residency (2019); and OCHAC gallery and vault (2018).

BERT LEVEILLE’s passion for finding images in clouds as a child, a love of the smell of greasepaint at Elmhurst College, and a fascination with stage environments that create another space, world, time – these are the foundation for her abstract art and immersive art installations. Her artwork is a combination of herself, and her world as a conduit – intertwining, connecting, and exploring a more universal world in search of an expanded yet connected consciousness.

Exposure to and love of theater permeates her art practice with mural sized abstract paintings, 3-D elements, and collaborations with dancers and musicians. Immersive installations include color sequenced lighting, animation, sound, and video. She explores a fine line of one being inside the art (“on-stage”) looking out; becoming part of the art; and/or viewing the art, encouraging viewers to immerse themselves in consciousness; become part of the art; enter this other world.

She uses her Starline studio as an incubation, exhibition, installation, experimentation studio that is a “must see” during Starline 4th Fridays Open Studios. LEVEILLE co-curates exhibitions for E* (formerly E-artgroup) and Chicago Women’s Caucus for Art (CWCA).

*Like Rothko's large and dreamy canvases, Leveille's installations invite us to lose ourselves in an encounter that transcends the irritations and limitations of the day to day. It may not go on forever, but it's a welcome respite from an increasingly troubled world.
Ann Landi – Contributing Editor, ARTnews; Founder and Editor, Vasari21.com*

*surfing the universe ... and the light's really part of it, right?, cold to warm and back again, the sidereal cycle of life and the universe, blue violet red orange yellow green blue violet ... light is both a particle and a wave, and those waves wash over everything; they emanate from spots—circles are everywhere!
B. David Zarley – writer, art critic*

Bert's work reflects the other worldly aspects of thought, imagination and wonderment. In the process, what is uniquely human is stripped down to its most fundamental, where form represents a universal rather than a particular gender, race, or age. To walk into the space, one is surrounded by light, the still image swirling in constant motion, while the pure energy of the experience expands our horizons.

Caren Helene Rudman – Curator, The Art Center Highland Park

BERT LEVEILLE ARTIST STATEMENT

I desire to give one a space for reflection and connection – a stage where one can enter a stream of consciousness reflecting an expanding reality, both internally and externally.

As I paint, often to music and/or sounds of nature, I attempt to explore consciousness using myself and my world as a conduit — revealing, intertwining, connecting and exploring a more universal world.

Beginning with large canvases that I treat like large watercolors sometimes beginning with metallic paint, I continue to layer the paint. I see life-size, somewhat gestural, figurative beings (human-like although not necessarily human) as mindful — with the same challenges, emotions, desires, pain, uncertainty, disappointments, surprise... I see them more like us than not, you more like me than not; and my reality more connected to the greater universe than not. LED synchronized colored lighting washes over the canvases creating different moods while hiding and highlighting different elements. I am exploring a fine line of one being on stage looking out; becoming part of the stage; and/or viewing the stage.

BERT LEVEILLE PRESS

Like Alvin Schwartz sketches bathed in cherry wine red and punch drunk orange, the paintings appear on queen-size canvas and stretch along every wall in the college's newly renovated art space. The more entrancing illustrations play respectfully into what Leveille calls her alternate universe and consciousness, featuring more gothic creations draped with threaded appendages and thinner shadows. "Nebular Breach" and "Future," both acrylics on canvas, are prime representations of Leveille's calendar style; it's one she expresses as a challenged essence of reality, while up close the drawings speak proverbial volumes of imagination revolting from repression.

— Will Petty, Editor in chief, Leader - Cult(ure) Issue: SEP 2004

Viewing the latest exhibit by artist Bert Leveille is a far cry from simply walking between paintings hung on the wall. The experience is more like taking a stroll through Leveille's subconscious ...

— Mary Piskorski, Daily Herald, NOV 1992

While novelists frequently say their characters take on a life of their own, it is far more unusual to hear a painter speak in those terms. But that is precisely how...Bert Leveille regards her work. ...

ABOUT BERT LEVEILLE ESSAY EXCERPTS

They swoop and bend and perform magical arabesques, both as solo performers and as animated partners. They are otherworldly, and yet strangely benign. ...

Leveille speaks of “spirituality” and her desire to connect with a “more universal consciousness.”

These are sentiments very much of our times, when many turn to meditation, not just as a way of cooling our hyperactive brains but of tuning into a higher realm of being, where possibilities of ecstasy exist and can be accessed through art.

— Ann Landi, Contributing Editor, ARTnews; Founder and Editor, Vasari21.com

Monumental paintings are unfurled like tapestries both against the wall in gallery fashion and also free falling to reveal both sides.

Amorphous beings emerge from layers of gestural marks and washes, harkening back to the surrealists’ practice of automatic writing. Leveille’s figures feel like a conduit to the subconscious. . .

— Sandra Bacon Artist, Curator, Educator

As literature creates worlds in the unconscious imagination, Bert’s work reflects the other worldly aspects of thought, imagination and wonderment. In the process, what is uniquely human is stripped down to its most fundamental, where form represents a universal rather than a particular gender, race, or age. To walk into the space, one is surrounded by light, the still image swirling in constant motion, while the pure energy of the experience expands our horizons.

— Caren Helene Rudman, Curator, Artist

...naked and raw, inviting in its softness and lack of manipulation; to the alien figures—they are like us in gestural form, less physiology than a spirit, less a figure than a feeling—who first bewilder, next frighten, next coax through chimerical, impossible dance, apian language, coquettish motion, come join us, uncanny valley bridged by dancing limbs, colonial beckoning into bert’s attempt to dial us up, or in the very least inspire us to try, to join what they call “mindful figures,” ... bodies free from the brutal oppression of outline and anatomy, black and grey with gilded obliques, violet hair, sanguine lips, eyes abyssal yet alive, abalone chests and clavicles, different and yet us, a possible us...
